Leveled Books

When reading the book, you can switch between pages using the “Next” and “Back” arrows on the left and right side of the screen.

A screenshot of the Raz-Kids Reading Room interface. At the top, there's a green bar with the text "Reading Room" and several icons: a microphone, a hand holding a pencil, a speech bubble, and a document. Below this is a central white area with a blue border. At the top of this area is an illustration of a woman in a blue dress and a young girl in a red dress sitting at a desk, reading together. Below the illustration is the title "Early Years" and a paragraph of text: "Abigail was born on November 11, 1744, in Massachusetts, one of the thirteen colonies. At the time, the colonies belonged to Great Britain." To the right of the text is a small map titled "The Thirteen Colonies" showing the eastern coast of North America with labels for New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia. Below the text and map, there are "Back" and "Next" arrows. At the bottom left, it says "Abigail Adams • Level K" and at the bottom center, the number "5".
